This Week In News: Wednesday, May 2, 2019

Hello,

It's Thursday, not Wednesday. Nonetheless, it's Rob Burgess, NUVO News Editor, back with you. I know we're a day late sending this week's News newsletter out, but once you see what we've got in store for you, I think you'll understand the reason for the delay.

I want to welcome you to our 2019 Primary Election Voters Guide! If you've been following along the past few weeks, you already know we've been involving input from you, our readers, each step of the way. Starting in early April, we put out a call to find out what you wanted to know from the candidates for Indianapolis City-County Council and Indianapolis mayor who are on the Tuesday, May 7 primary election ballot.

Once we started receiving the dozens of responses, we again asked you to rank which of these you wanted answered the most.

At the bottom of this newsletter you'll find the compiled answers we've received back by clicking the 2019 Voters Guide link. If you don't see your district or preferred candidate on this list, not to worry. There's still time for them to get involved. Though the original deadline was Friday, April 26, I sent one last reminder to all the remaining candidates who I have email addresses for on Tuesday, April 30. If I receive any of the outstanding answers from the missing candidates no later than Monday, May 6 I will add it to our Voters Guide.

I hope you find our Voters Guide helpful in making your decision about which candidate to support. You'll notice that some of the candidates listed in each race won't actually face off in the primary election since there are no other challengers in the same party. That's because I wanted to make sure these stories would be useful for making a decision in the November general election, as well.

If you have any questions, please feel free to contact me at rburgess@nuvo.net.

Thanks,

Rob Burgess

2019 Primary Voters Guide

In early April 2019, we asked NUVO readers to submit and then vote upon the questions they most wanted answers from Indianapolis City-County Council and Indianapolis mayoral candidates on the Tuesday, May 7, 2019 municipal primary election ballot. The following is a collection of the responses we received back by the Monday, May 6, 2019 deadline. Read more

Burgess: Primaries Often Matter More Than the Generals

These distinctions matter. I would argue they matter more in local politics than in national races because the decisions they make once elected to office will affect people's daily lives much more directly. So, vote, is what I'm saying. Read more
